
Philips Wifi Media Connect

Download Wifi Media Connect Philips for Wireless Linux, Tutorials.com. Best Software and Games for Linux, VLC Media Player for Linux. Welcome. Products for the home category - New & Complete - Philips. Compatible Devices: I have created an xorg.conf file for the rezound. I hope that this will work. The tv part is as follows: /dev/fb0 1134x706 32bit/P-16R. I created the layout file in the Philips > General > Current & future > The TV category as shown in the screenshot below. I will let you know when it gets resolved. as anyone had an experience with this program? I have also tried to configure a XMBC server to stream my TV, videos and music from my computer. I also use my Android phone for the service to watch TV from there. And I do also have a WLAN router from Netgear (RV630e). A: Install xbmcubuntu sudo add-apt-repository ppa:xbmcubuntu-dev/ppa sudo apt-get update sudo apt-get install xbmcubuntu-desktop Log out, and after logging back in choose XBMC as your session type in the sessions manager. Enjoy! A: Thanks for the link to your post, which is your solution. I had exactly the same problem and I solved it this way: Go to a video file and right click on it: open video properties (or properties > video tab): Make sure you have all the options checked: (video codec, audio codec, hardware decoding, flash, ipod integration, webcams, tuner type, display) Go to the first tab ("tv") and set a resolution for that device: Go to the "filename" tab and select "gstreamer streaming". In the server tab paste: rtpserver://192.168.1.2:8554/ -- substitute this IP address with your WLAN router. You can use now this video file from your computer or another computer with WLAN router (i.e. from your bedroom PC) and watch it on your TV. (This was tested on Ubuntu 10.04) Q: How to play multiple video files with AVPlayer? I am working on app which plays multiple 3e33713323
